Juror's Statement

It was a great pleasure to judge the first online exhibition for the Anderson Artist Guild. I always feel that I am behind the curve in regards to technology. However, I must say the Guild's webmaster certainly made my life easy. We all know there is nothing like seeing the real thing. Good art not only makes me want to look but it makes me want to touch as well. Although the physical connection is not as strong in the online shows there is uniqueness that may be overlooked. In the online show each piece appears approximately the same size and of course that size is small. Smallness lends a view to each work in which composition becomes more evident - somewhat like a "distant view". This distant view is exactly why artists like John Singer Sargent would make a single brushstroke and run back twenty feet before making another. So too is the reason artists use the reducing glass to view their work today. The artists I chose to recognize, in my opinion, honed not only their compositional skills, but also their technical skills and their personal voice. I am proud to be a part of Anderson County and to see the overall strength of so many artists in an inaugural exhibit. Great job Anderson Artist Guild and thanks to Joe Holladay for all his efforts in this show's success.

Juror's Bio

Russell Jewell is an artist/educator from Easley, South Carolina. For more than twenty-seven years he has carved a career out of the combining forces of art and education. Jewell's qualifications for such a career include a Bachelors degree in Art Education, a Masters of Art degree from the University of South Carolina and a Doctorate of Education in Art from the University of Georgia. Jewell has been juried into many national exhibitions including: Watercolor USA, Northeast Watercolor, Northwest Watercolor, Watercolor West, Adirondacks Exhibition of American Watercolor, Easton Maryland's Premiere Plein Air Competition, Telluride Plein Air, as well as the National Watercolor Society exhibition. Some of his painting awards include: the Savior Faire Award - National Watercolor Society, Cheap Joes Merchandise award – Watercolor West, Past Presidents Award – South Carolina Watercolor Society, Best Watercolor - Plein Air Easton, as well as, two Easton Fine Arts Academy purchase awards and two Pickens County Museum Purchase awards. Jewell also has work published in the North Light Publications: Splash 8, Watercolor Discoveries 2004, Splash 9 Watercolor Secrets 2006, Splash 10 Passionate Brushstrokes 2008. Jewell is slated to have two works published in the Splash 11 New Directions scheduled out 2010, as well as, Splash 12 in 2012 The Artist Magazine published Dr. Jewell in January 2005 and he was a featured artist with Watercolor Artist Magazine in June of 2009. Russell Jewell is a signature member of the S.C. Watermedia Society, the National Watercolor Society and the Transparent Watercolor Society of America. In 2008 Jewell received a US patent for his Jewell Box plein air viewfinder. His viewfinder and his work can be viewed at russelljewell.com. Much of his work reflects his travel experiences shared with his family, students and fellow colleagues to such places as England, Italy, France, The Netherlands, Costa Rica, Japan, and Canada. Some of Jewell's favorite subject matter includes his wife Melissa and children, Nicholas and Anna Mackenzie.
